Sustainable finance leader will build on the Bank's longstanding sustainability leadership and advance its climate and sustainable finance strategy

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Nov. 23, 2026-- Amalgamated Bank (NASDAQ: AMAL) today announced the appointment of Sean Wright as Chief Sustainability Officer, where he will lead the Bank's sustainability strategy and help advance its climate and sustainable finance priorities. Wright brings more than 20 years of experience across financial services and sustainability and most recently served as Executive Director and Global Head of Climate Transition at Morgan Stanley.

In his new role, Wright will work across the Bank to integrate sustainability into client engagement, advocacy, disclosures and business execution. He will build on Amalgamated's longstanding work to deploy capital in ways that address climate change, expand access to capital and support community-level impact.

"Sustainability has long been central to who we are and how we do business from the way we deploy capital to how we serve our customers and pursue responsible growth," said Sam Brown, Chief Banking Officer at Amalgamated Bank. "Sean brings deep experience across finance and sustainability, and I am confident he will build on the strong foundation our team has established as we continue to advance this work."

Wright succeeds Ivan Frishberg as part of a long-planned leadership transition. Frishberg helped advance Amalgamated's sustainability strategy and strengthen the Bank's leadership in sustainable finance.

"Amalgamated has demonstrated that sustainability can be embedded in how a financial institution operates, allocates capital and creates long-term value," said Sean Wright. "I'm excited to join Amalgamated given its strong record on sustainability and work with the team to translate that commitment into practical solutions for our clients, communities and a more resilient economy."

Prior to joining Amalgamated, Wright held senior climate and sustainability roles spanning the financial and nonprofit sectors. At Morgan Stanley, he helped lead the firm's climate strategy, with a focus on integrating climate considerations across investment decisions, risk management, disclosures and product development. Previously, he spent more than five years at the Environmental Defense Fund, working with investors and companies on methane emissions management and disclosure. He also served on the Board of Directors of the Partnership for Carbon Accounting Financials from 2020 to 2024. Wright holds an MBA in Finance and Accounting from Rutgers University Business School and a bachelor's degree in Political Science from Tufts University.
